Become a fan of the KY 4-H Foundation on Facebook and we will keep you informed about upcoming events and opportunities to get involved.

When you think back on your 4-H experience, more than likely 4-H Camp is a significant part of that memory. For nearly 100 years, Kentucky 4-H'ers have participated in some form of camping. Nowhere else in 4-H is our slogan of "Learn by Doing" more true than in the 4-H camping program. No doubt, you are one of the thousands of 4-H alumni that have been positively impacted by your experiences at 4-H Camp.

Today, Kentucky's four 4-H Camps host over 8,800 youth each year during the summer camping program. Additional 4-H'ers participate in specialty camps like environmental, Cloverbud, aerospace and teen retreats held in the spring, fall, and on weekends. These specialty pr-grams increasing the total camping program to more than 14,000 from all 120 counties.

The vision of the 4-H camping program is to bring together young people and provide quality experiences that stimulate skills for living and lifelong learning. The economic, social, moral and physical growth of a young person is enhanced in the "Learn by Doing" approach of 4-H. At each of Kentucky's 4-H Camps, you'll find all types of fun things to do. Swimming, riflery, archery, canoeing, crafts, songs, and dances are just some of the activities you may remember that are still carried on today. The vision has not changed.

What has changed over the years is the need to expand, modernize, and provide for delayed maintenance of 4-H camp facilities. The 4-H Foundation has been active in recent years developing a Camp Improvement Campaign. Years of wear and tear and the lack of funds to make major upgrades have taken their toll. Most of our camp facilities were built in the 1960's and many of the buildings along with much of the infrastructure are original.

I hope you enjoy the 4-H Camp and history of camp articles along with the photos in this newsletter. We have forgone some of the normal features in this issue to share with you the exciting things happening with the 4-H Camp Improvement Campaign.

It's always interesting as I do fundraising to meet new people and hear about their 4-H Camp memories. One that stands out in my mind is a meeting Board member Bill Wilson and I had with representatives from National City Bank, now PNC Bank, almost two years ago. We walked into the lunch meeting knowing only one of the bank employees, as I introduced myself to the regional Vice President, his first words to me were, "I went to 4-H Camp." Needless to say, it wasn't long before PNC Bank was a sponsor of the 4-H Centennial Celebration.

4-H Camp has created lifetime memories and relationships. In fact I bet someone reading this column met their spouse at 4-H camp. It never amazes me with just the mentioning of 4-H Camp how the memories begin to flow. The campfires, being away from home for the first time, Sally down the Alley, not to mention the underwear on the flagpole, and a few other pranks some of us were involved in are just some of the memories I know we all share.

I hope these thoughts of 4-H Camp will motivate you to become a partner in our Camp Improvement Campaign and that you will share this newsletter with some of those friends you made through 4-H and at 4-H Camp. We know it will take years to achieve the improvements that are needed, but there is not a greater tradition in 4-H that needs the financial support and can benefit future 4-H members.

I'm also pleased to share with you in this issue the new 4-H brand campaign called Join the Revolution of Responsibility and to showcase Kentucky 4-H'er, Meg Copass. As we bring the campaign to life, it will tell the 4-H story in far more compelling terms than ever before. By showcasing stories of real 4-H'ers making a real impact in their communities, it will give voice to the uncommon dedication and barrier-breaking commitment found in the young people who are in 4-H. It's the kind of revolution this world needs. I encourage you to check-out the website <http://www.4-h.org/about/revolution/> to learn more.

I never want to fail to say thank you to our donors. The 4-H Foundation donor base continues to grow, we have seen donations increase each of the past two fiscal years and I am pleased to report we have already exceeded $500,000 in donations this fiscal year with four months to go. Remember, no gift is too small or too large. Again, thank you for helping to Make the Best Better!

The campaign started with a five year commitment from Kentucky's Touchstone Energy Cooperatives in 2005. In 2008, the Kentucky General Assembly appropriated $2 million which provided much more than a one-time infusion of cash. It gave 4-H and the Foundation, the springboard needed to not only begin facility improvements in earnest, it also began the discussion about what 4-H camps should be in the future. The campaign most recently has continued with commitments from the R. C. Durr Foundation, Dean Scott Smith and the College of Agriculture, the local Camp Improvement Committees, the Kentucky Horse Council, and individuals. Counting all sources, to date over $2.7 Million has been invested in 4-H camp improvements.

The priorities for the campaign have been determined with input from 4-H Agents and volunteers looking to have the greatest impact on improving the camper's experience, with an eye on long term planning and a focus on leveraging public and private funds together. One of the first projects to be completed in the spring of 2010 was the replacement of all 715 bunk beds and mattresses, putting many smiles on campers and adults last summer. Also in 2010, water slides were installed at each camp. In late summer, contracts were awarded for the larger projects with construction and renovation currently underway.

Along with camp improvements, Dr. Jimmy Henning, Director of KY Cooperative Extension, launched a comprehensive strategic planning process involving administrators, extension agents, volunteers, and the Foundation to develop a master plan for future camp improvements and growth. This effort is a long-term process looking at leadership development, facilities, programming, marketing and fundraising. As with any Extension effort, local leadership and participation is vital. Therefore, the planning includes each of the four Camp Improvement Committees (CIC), a group of agents and volunteers focused on their individual 4-H camp. The CIC's have long been the backbone of camp improvement, but are rejuvenating themselves to provide the leadership, input, and local planning needed to advance the camp improvement process.

We are in the early stages of the Camp Improvement Campaign. The estimate to replace all of the cabins is $14 million and this does not take into consideration dining halls, bath houses, and infrastructure needs. Currently, three camps need expanded dining hall capacity and at three camps bath houses are in serious need of replacement.

You can help Kentucky 4-H by giving to the camp of your choice. No gift is too small and no gift is too large. It will take many gifts to complete this effort to Make the Best Better at Kentucky's 4-H Camps. This summer each of the camps will host an event to showcase the projects and thank those who have helped us begin this campaign. You're invited to take a walk down memory lane, join us at your 4-H camp this summer and become a part of the 4-H Camp Improvement Campaign.

JOIN | THE REVOLUTION OF RESPONSIBILITY

James Westerfield

Kentucky 4-H has been very busy the last couple of months. State Secretary Sarah Rowellet and Vice President Nick Yeast attended Florida's equivalent to Kentucky's 4-H State Teen Council. State Treasurer Zack Turner and Sarah Rowlette attended the State Volunteer Advisory Group, and did a superb job representing the program. This led to the entire officer team being asked to attend the State Extension Council meeting.

At the State Extension Council meeting we shared with the group the story of how one State Teen Council member had an idea, spoke up, and that idea was put into action. Allyson Wilkerson from District 6 presented an idea on creating a bullying program to the State Teen Council. Within minutes we organized a committee; in weeks that committee put together a workshop and an instructional packet.

The State Teen Council meeting in February was a great success. We were only two members shy of 100% attendance, raised $153.10 in dimes, and made Valentine cards with the State Teen Council cards for the Galilean Children's Home. The workshop on Bullying was led by Council members. It will be taught in counties, and at the Teen Summit by council members.

The State Teen Council was the honored host of Louisiana's State 4-H President Gabe Stelley and S.E.T. Board member Robert Fulsilier, along with Gabe's Father Chuck Stelley as a chaperon. Together they presented their State Board system to the council. Their system seems very intriguing and functional. In exchange, State 4-H Treasurer Zack Turner and I will be attending the Louisiana Junior Leadership Conference in March to learn more about their system and to demonstrate Kentucky's Council system.

Teen Summit is shaping up to be two packed sessions in one great weekend at Jabez. With numerous State Teen Council volunteers signed up the pre-teen conference is going to be a great experience for the youth of Kentucky 4-H.

Supporting KY 4-H

Sounding the Alarm KY 4-H'er Gains National Attention

After tornados tore through her small town in Monroe County, Meg Copass decided to focus her 4-H Gold Honors Project on helping her town be better prepared for emergencies. "I wanted to make an impact on my community," said Meg, a 4-H'er for more than 10 years. "I wanted to do more than just a canned food drive."

Meg is one of a handful of 4-H'ers from across the United States that are featured in the National 4-H Council's new brand campaign called Join the Revolution of Responsibility. The campaign, aimed primarily at engaging elected officials, financial partners, and community leaders, showcases how 4-H'ers are making things happen in their communities. It is a compelling way to tell the 4-H story.

Through interviews with volunteers, administrators, and government officials, Meg realized her town lacked the funds to pay for an early warning emergency system. This limited the ability of the town's emergency responders to alert the residents of approaching storms or other emergencies. Based on this assessment, she decided to help raise funds to purchase the system.

Meg credits her confidence and perseverance to what she learned in 4-H. "4-H helped me grow," she said. "It gave me the skills I needed and helped me to know myself better."

With concerts, silent auctions, game tournaments, and food sales, Meg raised $11,873, this was 80% of the needed funds and the city was able to find the additional funds to make the purchase. To other youth who may face adversity, Meg advises, "Just believe in yourself, and you can do it."

The Revolution of Responsibility is a movement for positive change in every community in America. 4-H'ers are a living, breathing, culture-changing revolution for doing the right thing, breaking through obstacles, and pushing our country forward by making a measureable difference right where they live.

4-H Foundation Introduces

The Kentucky 4-H Leadership Circle

The Kentucky 4-H Foundation launched the Kentucky 4-H Leadership Circle in January 2011 to recognize donors for substantial unrestricted donations.

Kentucky 4-H is supported by many individuals, businesses and organizations. Their support is essential to providing an outstanding 4-H program. That support is evident as donations to the 4-H Foundation have increased each of the past two years.

The Kentucky 4-H Leadership Circle is designed to recognize those who make a $1,000 or more annual unrestricted gift. Members will be known as "Investors" and each Leadership Circle Investor receives special recognition throughout the year, tickets to 4-H Foundation events and is invited to serve in an advisory role to advancing support for 4-H.

Our investors in this program are helping to provide the resources needed to grow the Foundation's donor base and the overall support for Kentucky 4-H.

The 4-H Foundation thanks the first Investors to join the Kentucky 4-H Leadership Circle:
